

Dear

800 Australian children are diagnosed with cancer each year and thousands more are battling cancer daily. A child with cancer can be away from school for two years or more. They can become isolated and can suffer anxiety and depression. The Fight Cancer Back on Track Program is designed to ensure that each child continues their education and maintains contact with their school, teachers and peers. Our mission is to ensure that every child is given the opportunity to reach their full potential, educationally, socially, emotionally and physically.

We invite you to participate in the "A Touch of Red" art exhibition and help raise much needed funds for children living with cancer.

"A Touch of Red" is a new initiative of the Fight Cancer Foundation in conjunction with long-term supporter, Blacksphere Fine Art of Melbourne. We are inviting actors, artists, celebrities, sporting greats and other personalities to paint postcard size canvases that must feature "a touch of red". Our patrons Deborra-lee Furness and Hugh Jackman have completed their entries as seen below.

All paintings will be exhibited for one month at Blacksphere Fine Art and then for two weeks at the Sofitel Melbourne on Collins later this year. The exhibition will be promoted to the public with the names of the exhibiting artists listed. Potential buyers will place bids for their favourite piece via a Silent Auction.

The surprise element is that the bidders will not know whose work they have purchased until after the auction closes, as the artist's name will not be visible on the front of the painting.

We invite you to be part of this exhibition to help the Fight Cancer Foundation in our mission to give hope and save lives. If you agree to participate please let me know by emailing –
